Christ, the light that shone before the sun, dwelt on earth in human form. Wishing to fulfill the divine work of salvation before His Cross, today He mystically reveals the image of the Trinity on Mount Tabor. He took aside His three chosen disciples, Peter, James, and John; and for a short time He concealed His incarnation. He was transfigured before them, manifesting the splendor of the original beauty. By this He strengthened them in their faith; yet He spared them from losing their life at this sight, and so their eyes saw only as much as they could behold. He also called upon Moses and Elijah, the most venerable of the prophets, to witness to His divinity, testifying that He is indeed the reflection of the Father, the Lord of the living and the dead. A cloud also enveloped them as a tent, and the voice of the Father bore witness on high, saying: This is My beloved Son; hear Him! I have begotten Him before the daystar in a virginal manner; I have sent Him to save those baptized in the Father, Son, and Holy Spirit, those who confess in faith that the power of the divinity is one and indivisible. O Christ our God, You love all humanity; make us shine in the brightness of Your inaccessible glory; and in Your supreme goodness, makes us worthy to inherit Your never-ending kingdom. At the Litiya of Vespers

Next Sunday: TENTH SUNDAY AFTER PENTECOST

I Corinthians 4: 9 - 16 The Ministry of the Apostles

Matthew 17: 14 – 23 The Healing of a Boy with a Demon

~ ANNOUNCEMENTS ~
